LITTLE FOLKS IN GAY DRESS

The Seengerbund's Annual Children's Prolic at Masonie Temple.

Masquerade Ball Drew a Host of Merrymakers and Their Friends Popular German Entertainment.

The Washington Saengerband gave one of its most popular annual entertainments last evening, at Masonic Temple, at the corner of Ninfh and F streets northwest, when the members and their wives and children and friends gathered to the number of about five hundred.

ft was a "Children's Day" festival, where the juvenile bapper was supreme and before which the seniors gave way from 8:30 to 10:30 o'clock, the occasion being a masquerade ball exclusively for the little people.

They came in all sorts of costumes, their native witchery and pleasing dimples being in many cases obscured by the fantastic drapery through which the eyes alone were visible.

They indulged in a grand promenade as the initial proceeding, the merry throng the initial proceeding, the merry throng having in it representatives or every age, from the wee tot of three and five years to the more sedate young men and maidens in their teens; and when, at the conclusion of the walk around, the music changed to polka, waltz, schottische, and two-step, successively, the little feet kept time to "Bella Bocca," "Wien Bleibt Wien," "siondolierg," "Oh, Manna," "Vienna Dudes," and other favorite airs, while the ciders looked on approvingly. The scene was quite brilliant, though the heat of the evening rendered the participants somewhat uncomfortable.

Light refreshments were served to the little people prior to the homegoing, and

Whatt Is Lafe a Bloated Bondholder? Watertown, N. Y., April 26.-Ex-Con-

The body of a colored mfant, apparently about three months old, was found by some colored boys on a vacant lot on M street, between Third and Fourth, southeast, and taken to No. 5 police station. The coroner gressman Charles D. Haines, of Kinder-nock, and Lafe Pence, of Colorado, were in town to-day, and completed the purchase of a controlling interest in the Kinder-hook and Hudson Railway. The transac-tion amounts to about $75,000.
